

SUSTAINING OUR WORLD SPEAKER SERIES

Metroparks Toledo and Dana Incorporated seek to engage and educate our community on the significance of the natural resources in Northwest Ohio, the importance of protecting and restoring our ecosystems, and ways that we each can take action to make a difference.

BIRD CONSERVATION AND MIGRATION

Global Perspectives and Local Impact

TUESDAY, APRIL 11

6:30 p.m. | Glass City Metropark Pavilion

Dr. Jay Wright

*Director of Conservation Science
Metroparks Toledo*

Kimberly Kaufman

*Executive Director
Black Swamp Bird Observatory*

Jeff Sailer

*President/CEO
Toledo Zoo & Aquarium*

Northwest Ohio is known as the Warbler Capital of the World with thousands of avian and human visitors flocking to the region for the Biggest Week in American Birding. Birds are beautiful and fun to study, but there is more to the story. Migratory bird species have long been seen as indicators of environmental change and great indicators of climate change—the canary in the coal mine—for global warming.

What do they tell us about our changing world? Why are bird species important to keep ecosystems worldwide healthy? Why is restoring and maintaining their natural habitat in Northwest Ohio so important? What can individuals and organizations do to support bird health and bird migration?

For more event information and to reserve your free tickets, please visit MetroparksToledo.com/sowseries or call 419-407-9700.

TAKE ACTION

Volunteer! Glass City Metropark | April 20. For details, email Meredith.Busic@MetroparksToledo.com
Join Us! Our next session of Sustaining Our World is June 13
Become a Metroparks Member! Visit MetroparksToledoFoundation.org/membership for more info