Step 1 – TAGGING THE DEER

Tagging your deer killed on a Deer Damage Control Permit is very similar to temporary tagging a deer during hunting season. Every person who kills a deer under a deer damage permit must immediately:

- Make a Deer Damage Carcass Tag with shooter's name, date & time of kill, and Deer Damage Permit # (see example below)
- Attach the completed Deer Damage Carcass Tag to the deer at the place where it fell

| You can make copies and use this tag or make up your own with the same information below on it | | | | | |

Step 2 – REPORTING THE DEER

Within 5 business days of a deer killed on a Deer Damage Control Permit you MUST report it to the Division of Wildlife. There are 3 options for reporting your deer:

- 1) The easiest and quickest option is to report your deer online at <http://apps.ohiodnr.gov/wildlife/wildlifedamage/tagentry> (you will need the permit and key number, located on the permit, to report your kill)

- 2) Don't have internet? Check your deer by calling the district office that covers the county where the deer was killed (phone numbers on page 2 of the permit). You can call Mon.-Fri. between 8am-5pm.

- 3) Don't have internet access or phone access? Mail in a copy of your Deer Damage Carcass Tag to a district office (addresses located on page 2 of permit).

Step 3 – WHAT TO DO WITH THE DEER

- If the deer has antlers, remove them and dispose of them according to the permit conditions.
- If you take a deer killed on a Deer Damage Permit to a processor for processing, you must provide them a copy of the Deer Damage Carcass Tag.
- If the deer is not getting utilized, properly dispose of the deer according to the permit conditions.
